

Art @

At Max Estates, we feel deeply about the intersection of work and life. It's why Max Towers has been envisioned and built around the idea of "WorkWell" - a lifestyle where all the physical amenities of a modern workspace come together with human-centric design. The result is enhanced and enriched experiences for both work and life, with both converging to become greater than the sum of their parts.

A crucial component of this synergistic experience is art. Art has the unique ability to not just blend in with work, but also actively participate in it, inspiring and guiding all that we do. Art at Max Estates goes a step further, giving our tenants a sense of belonging with a space they can fall in love with. It's also manifestation of our ethos and philosophy - enabling interactions, blending work and happiness, and building communities and bonds beyond work. All of this, simultaneously.

With myriad moods and placement of these artworks throughout Max Towers, they induce inspiration in its purest forms - from curiosity and calm to playfulness and mystery. Each piece is uniquely designed and installed by world-class international artists, leaving a mark in our lives in ways only quality art can.

OKHLA

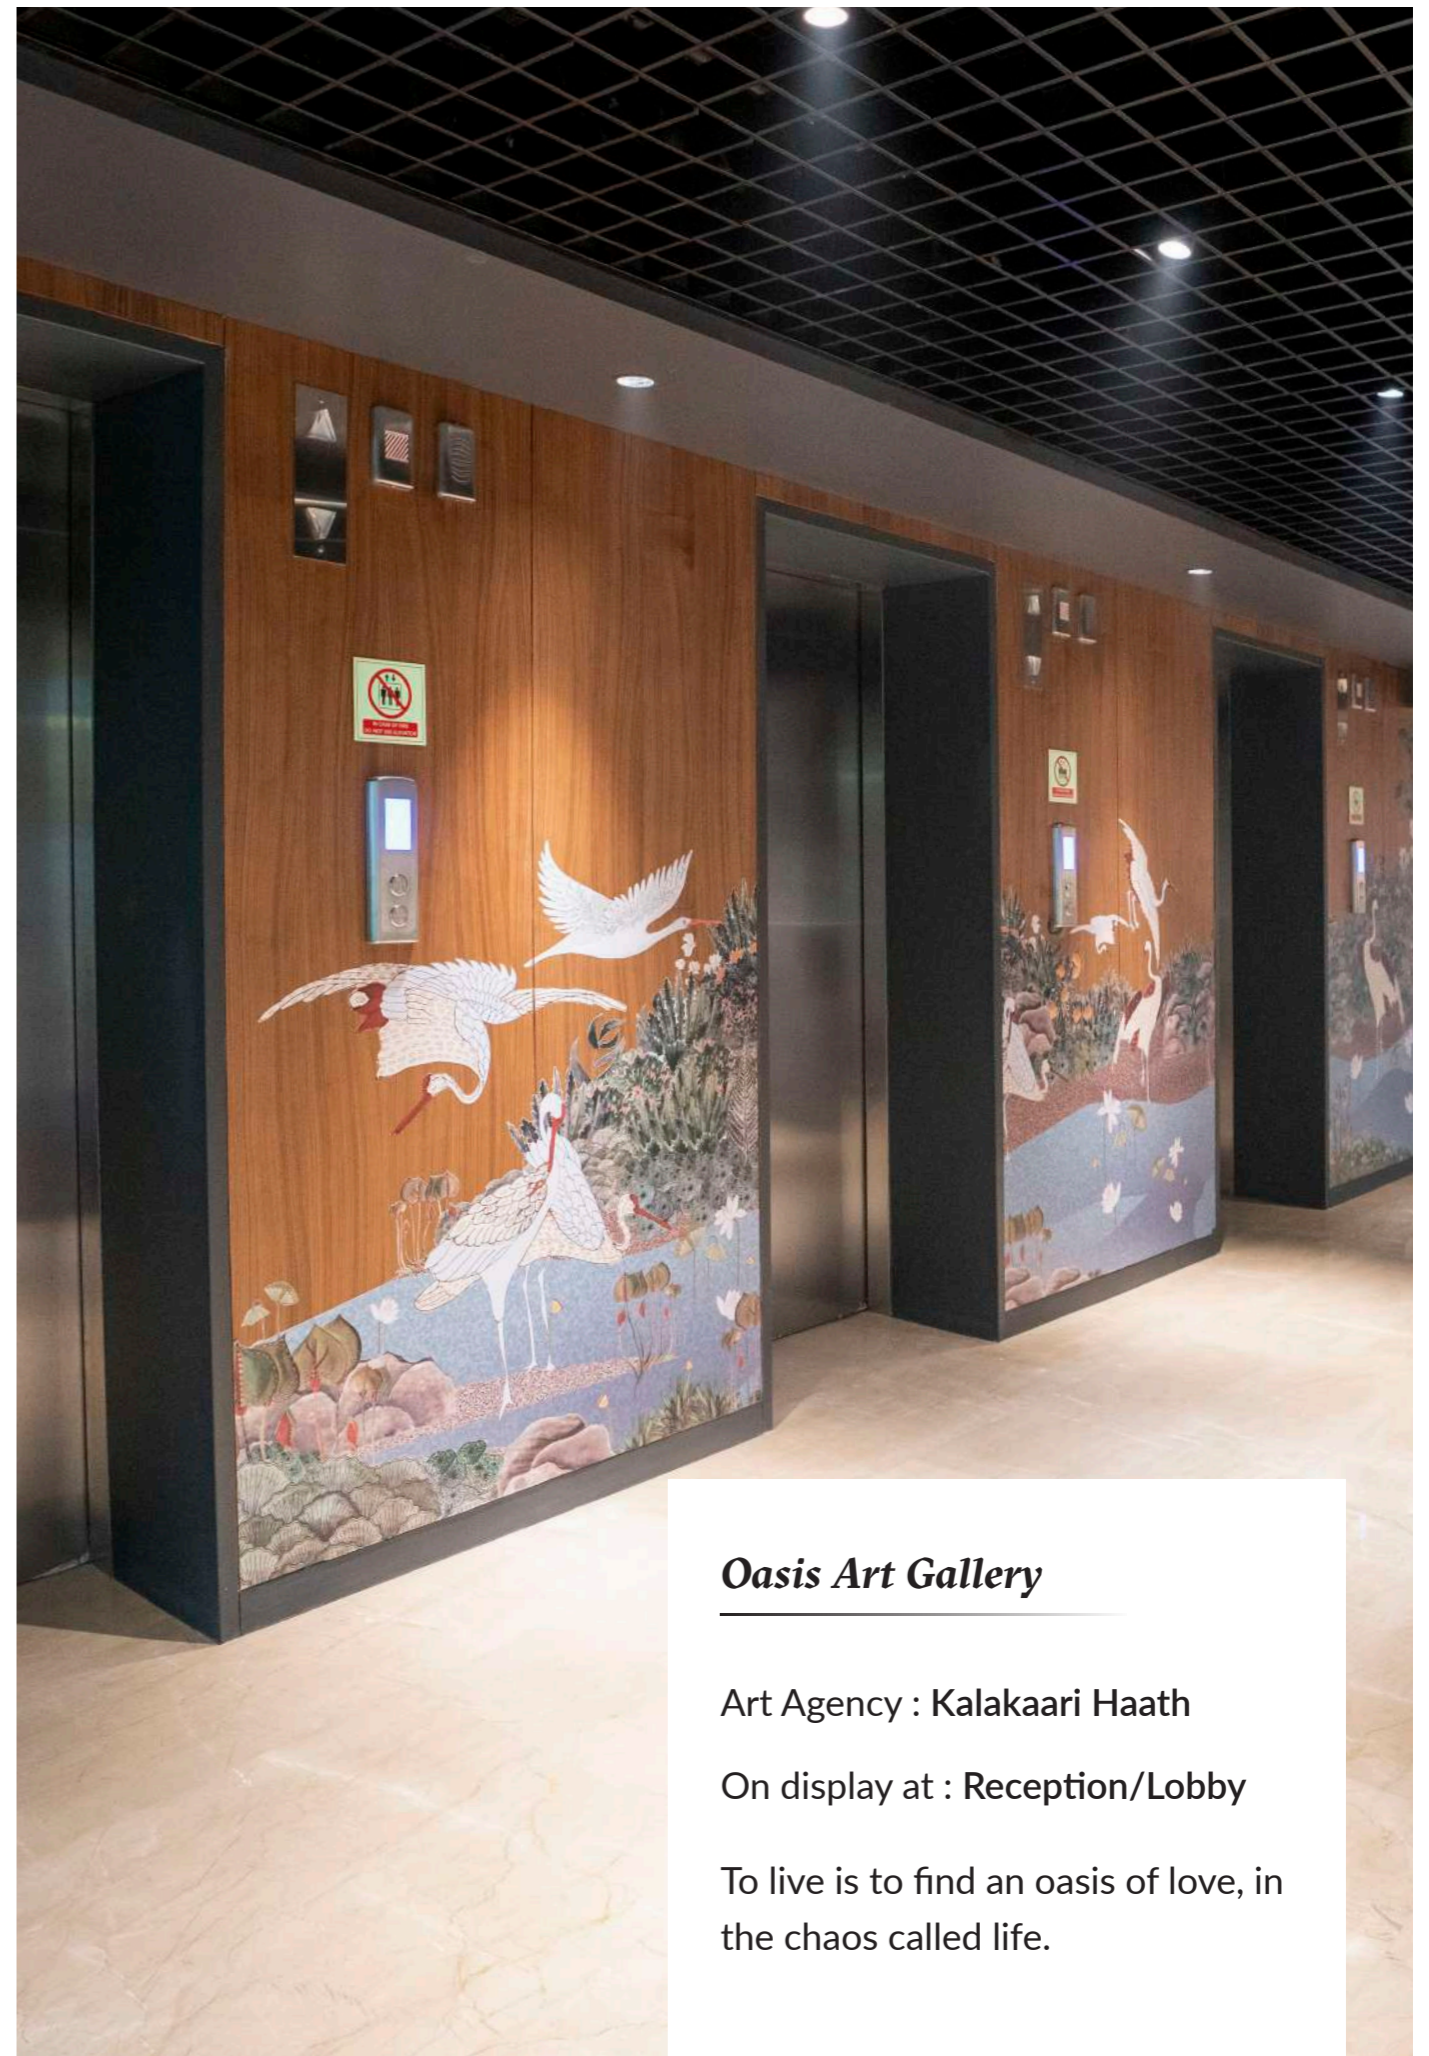

Laaga Chunari Mein Daag

Artist : Girjesh Kumar Singh

On display at : Next to Security Turnstiles

This installation addresses an issue of deep concern and passion for the artist who has expressed this for over a decade through different creations of the same medium: an unconventional material in a distinctive language. The nature of the medium underlines the very ethos of the work which seeks to address concerns of identity, migration and displacement. Displacement of people has been evidenced through the ages and continues even today. Created with the rubble of brick and mortar of old demolished walls, the red colour of the brick, hidden in plaster and cement, shows a 'fresh brokenness' - beautiful to look at while exposing struggles of the past. The artist feels that often if the past was beautiful then the present senses sadness because it is only a memory. Good memories sometimes tend to cause some melancholy because of the realization of their absence. Conversely, bad memories create pleasure, as they exist no more.

Oasis Art Gallery

Art Agency : Kalakaari Haath

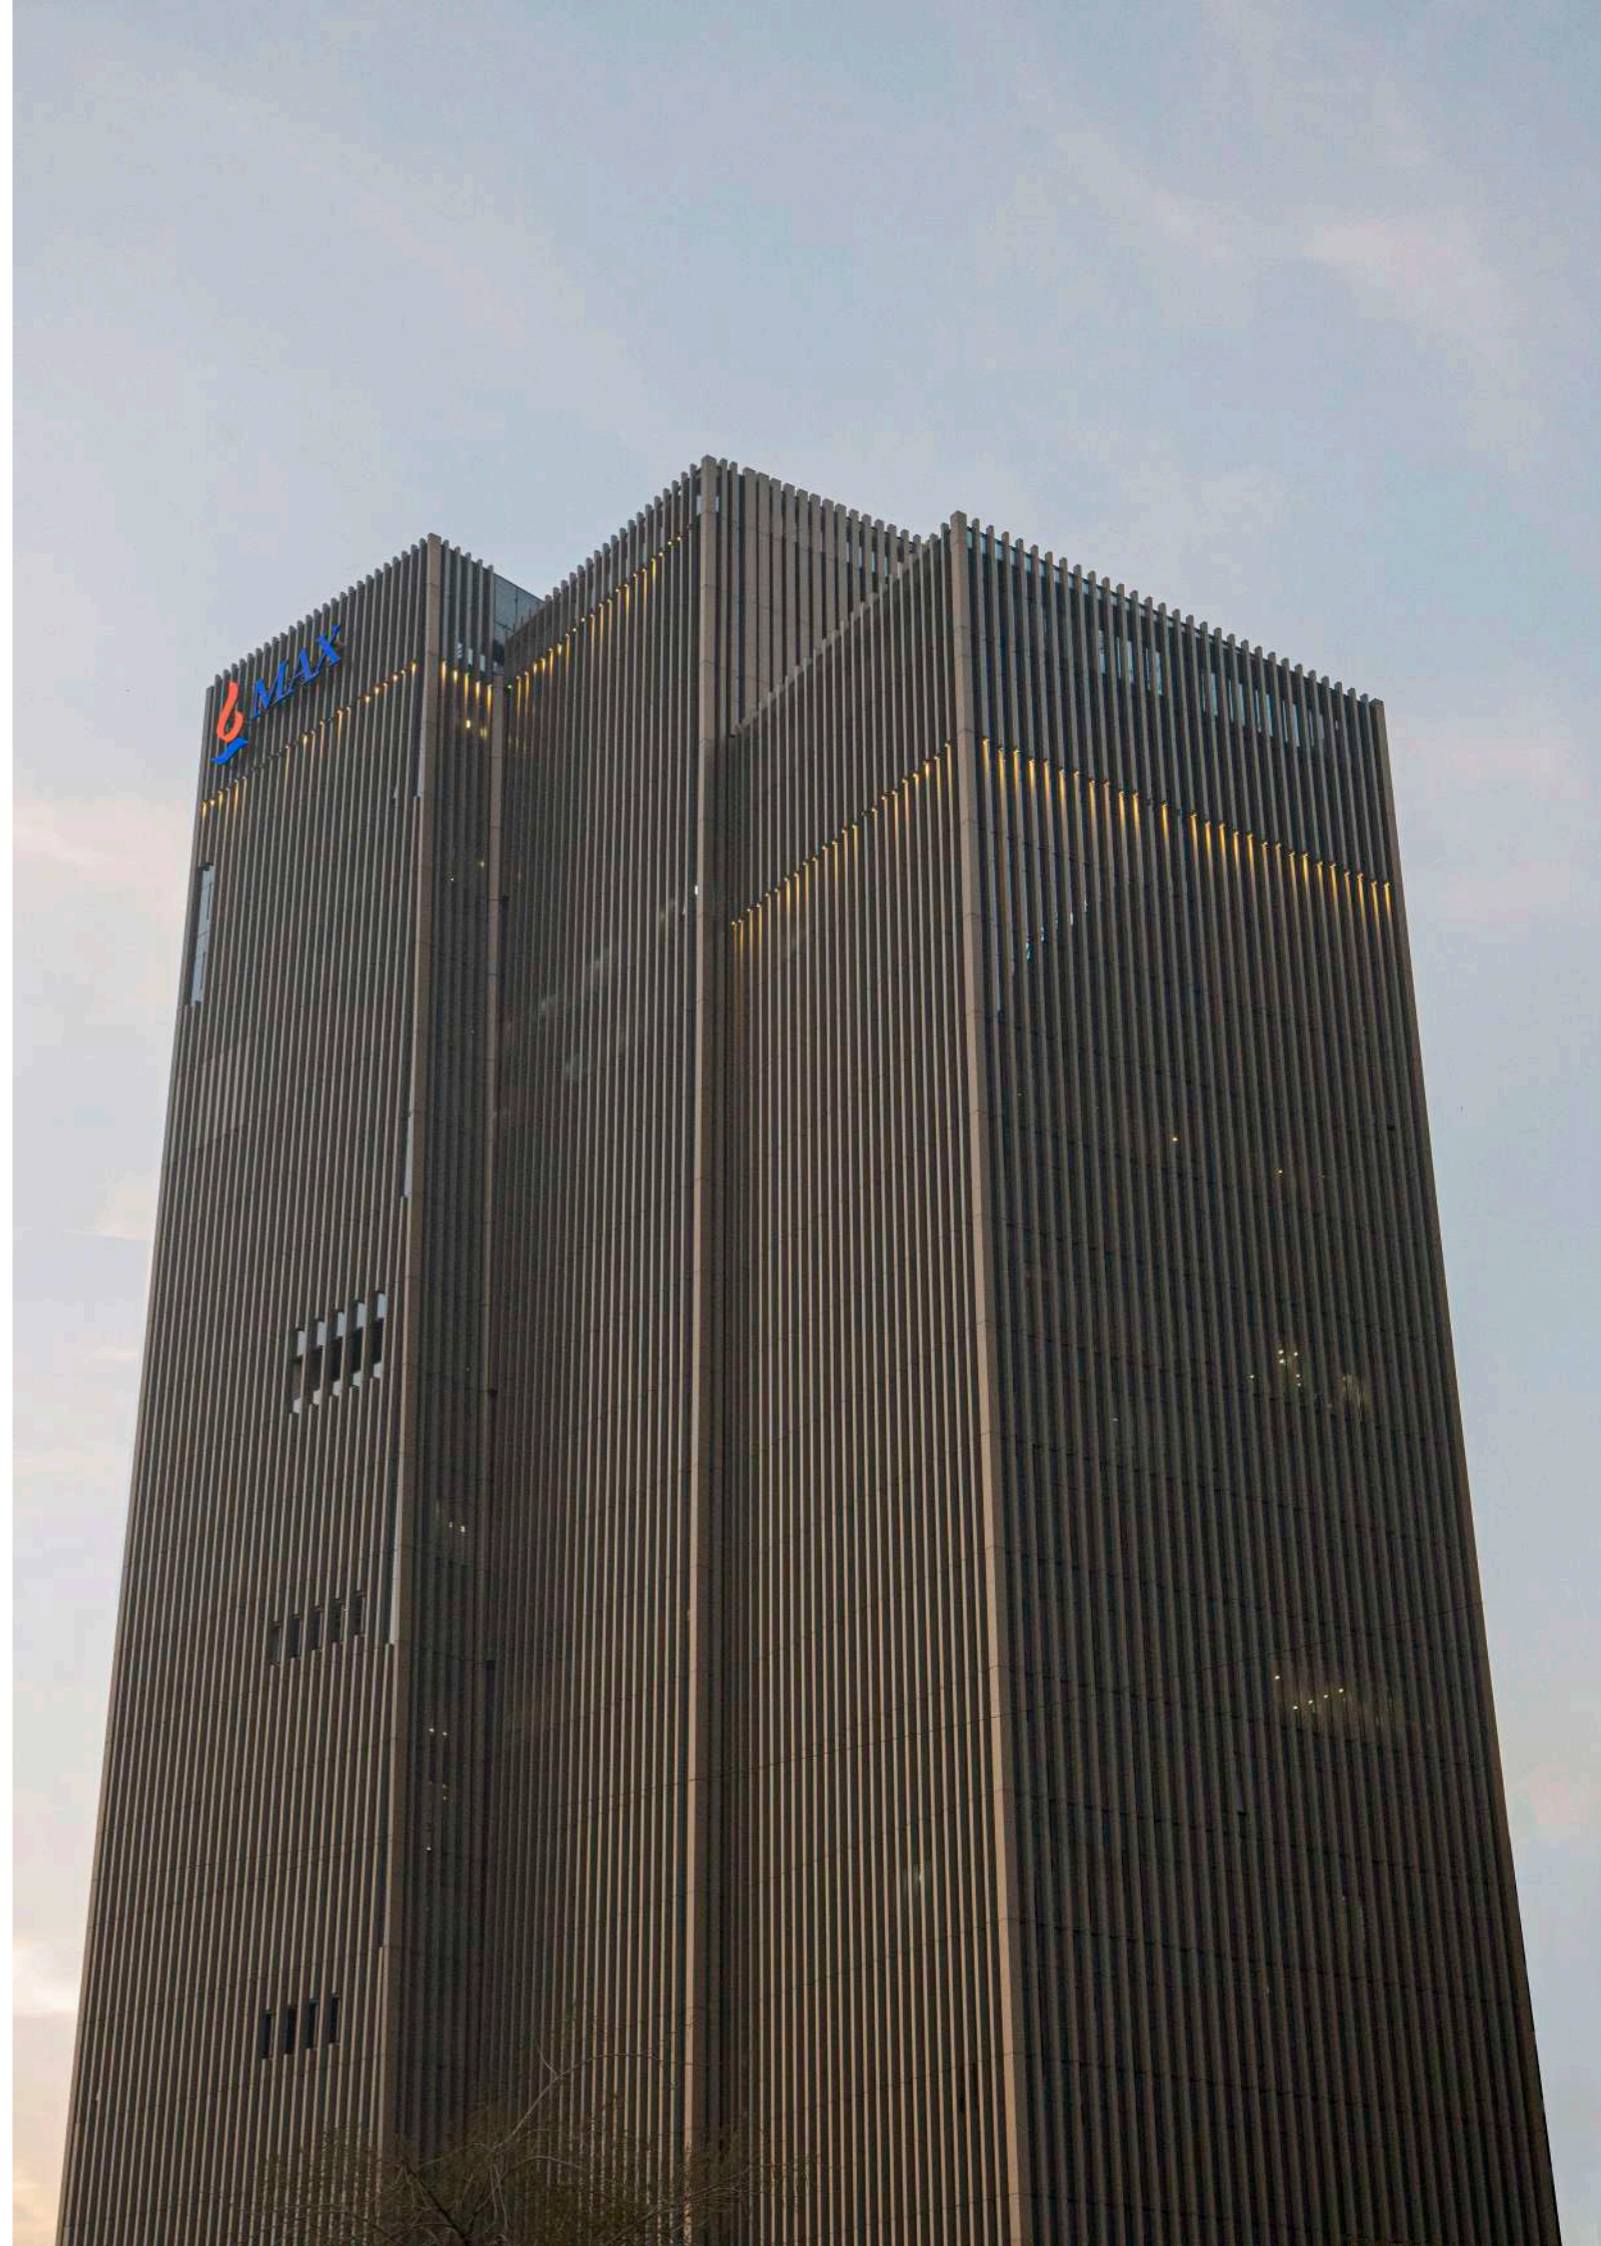

On display at : Reception/Lobby

To live is to find an oasis of love, in the chaos called life.

NOIDA

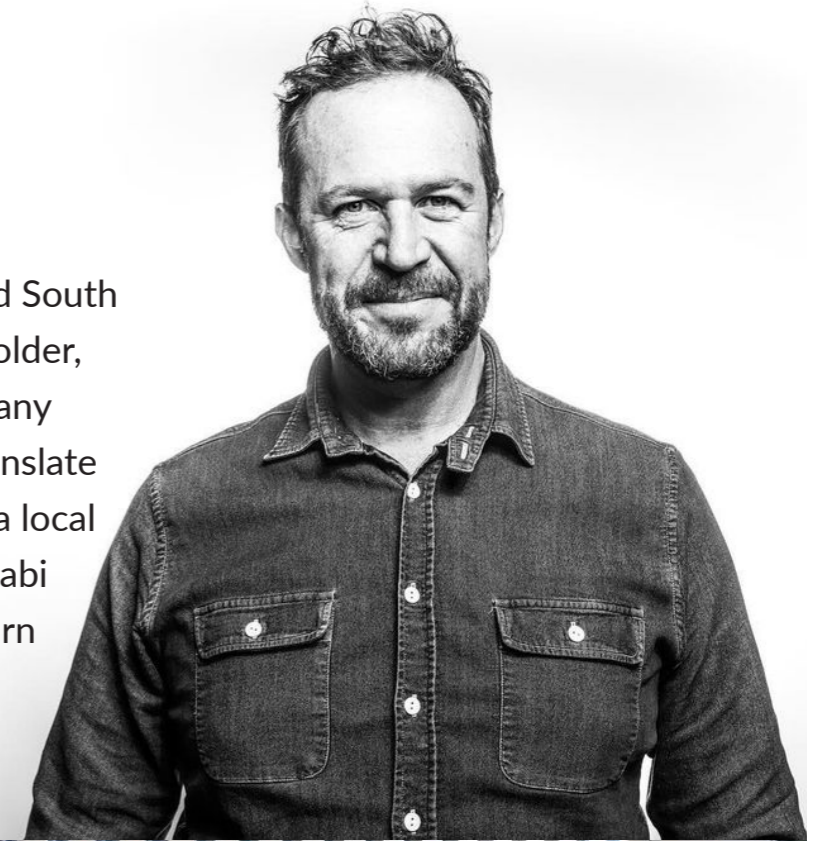

Holderstebolder

Artist : Angus Vanzyl Taylor

On display at : The Courtyard

Angus Vanzyl Taylor, the acclaimed South African artist believes Holderstebolder, 2018, to be an artwork devoid of any agenda or dogma. " If I were to translate 'Holderstebolder' (Afrikaans) into a local language, I would use putha' (Punjabi for upside-down). It is to invert, turn something on its head, and in this case, the monument," says Angus.

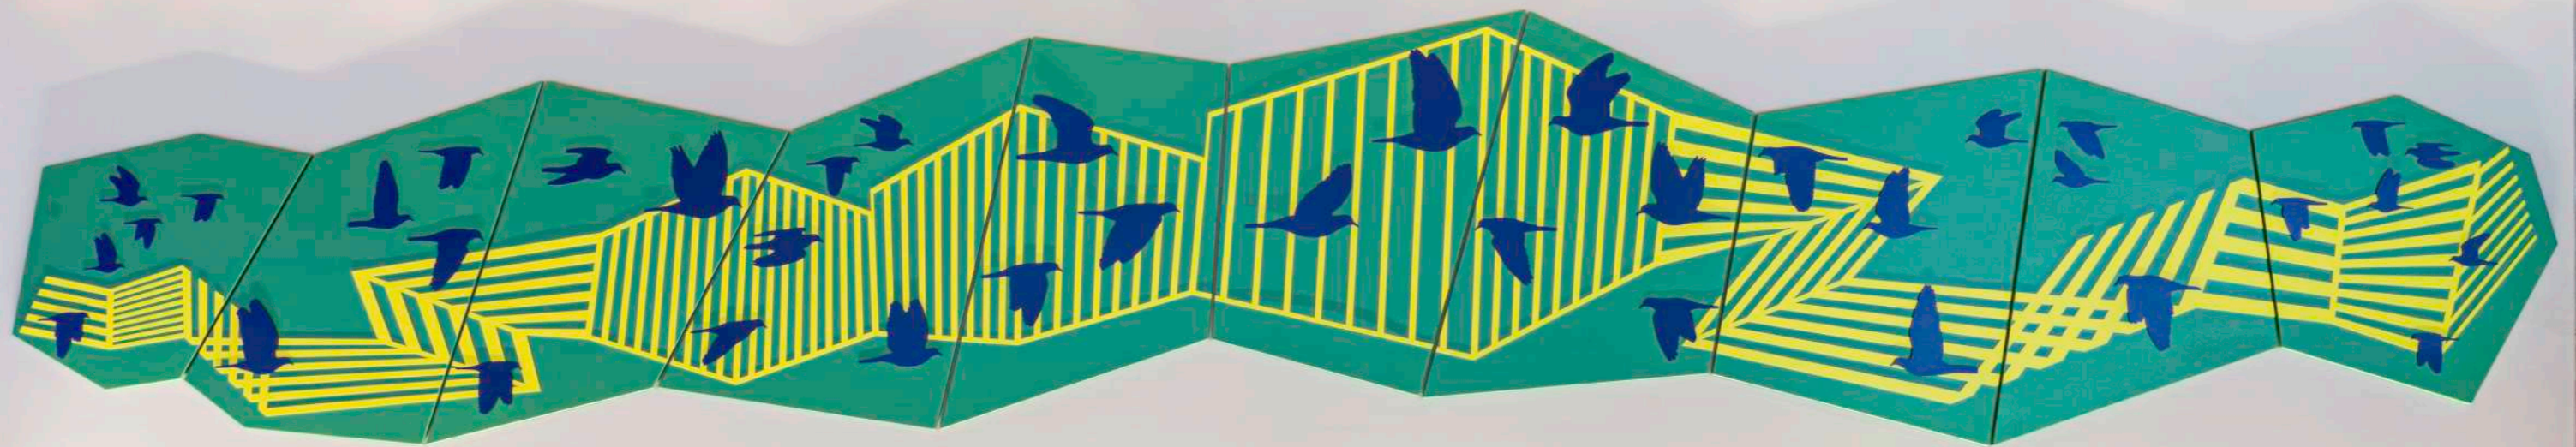

Howler

Artist : Angus Vanzyl Taylor

On display at : The Auditorium

An Angus Vanzyl Taylor creation in bronze, Howler is a piece meant to activate space and breathe life into the building.

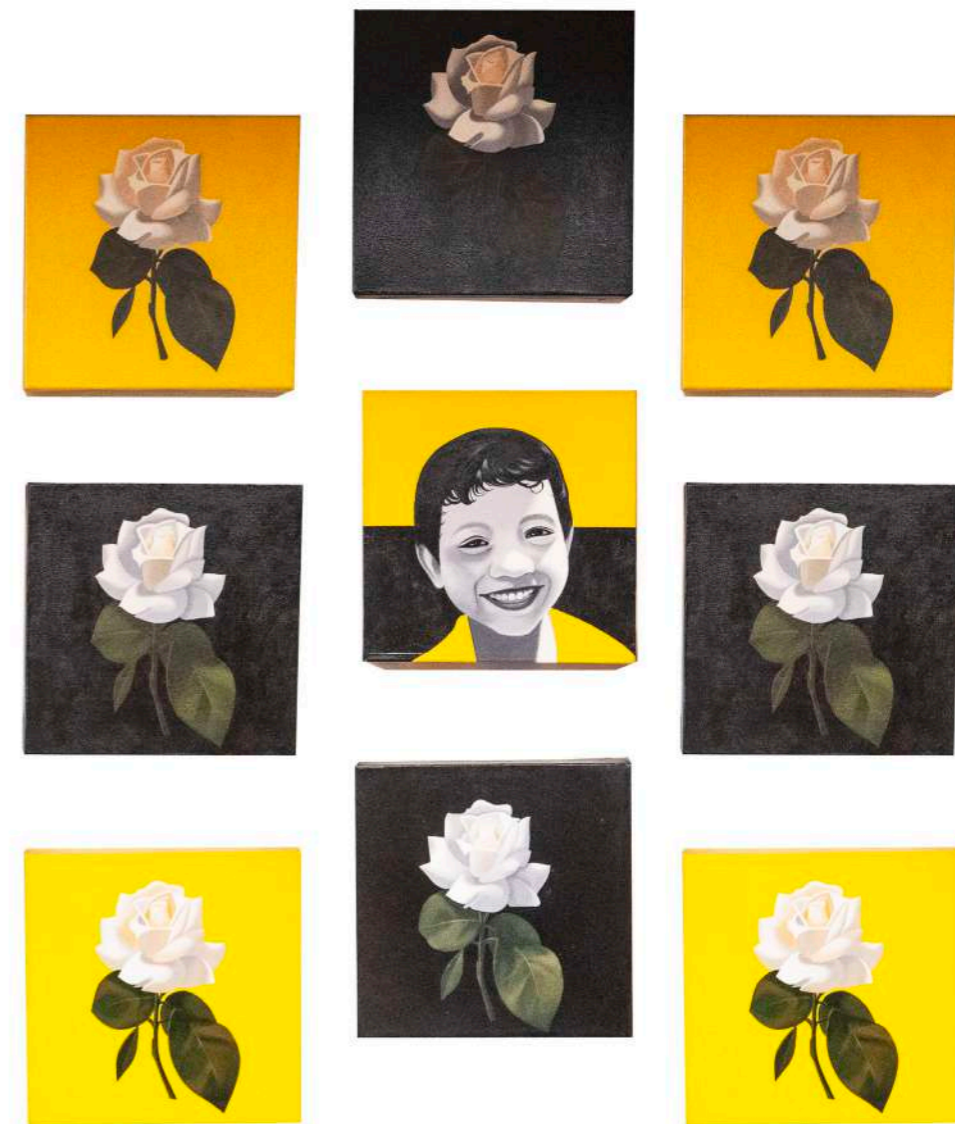

Birds of a Feather Flock Together

Artist : Jacobus Johannes Sieberhagen

On display at : The Reception

It is a masterpiece that symbolizes freedom and unity. It's crafted by award-winning artist Jaco Sieberhagen from aluminum, stainless steel, and paint.

The aim of art is to represent not the outward appearance of things, but their inward significance.

...
Aristotle

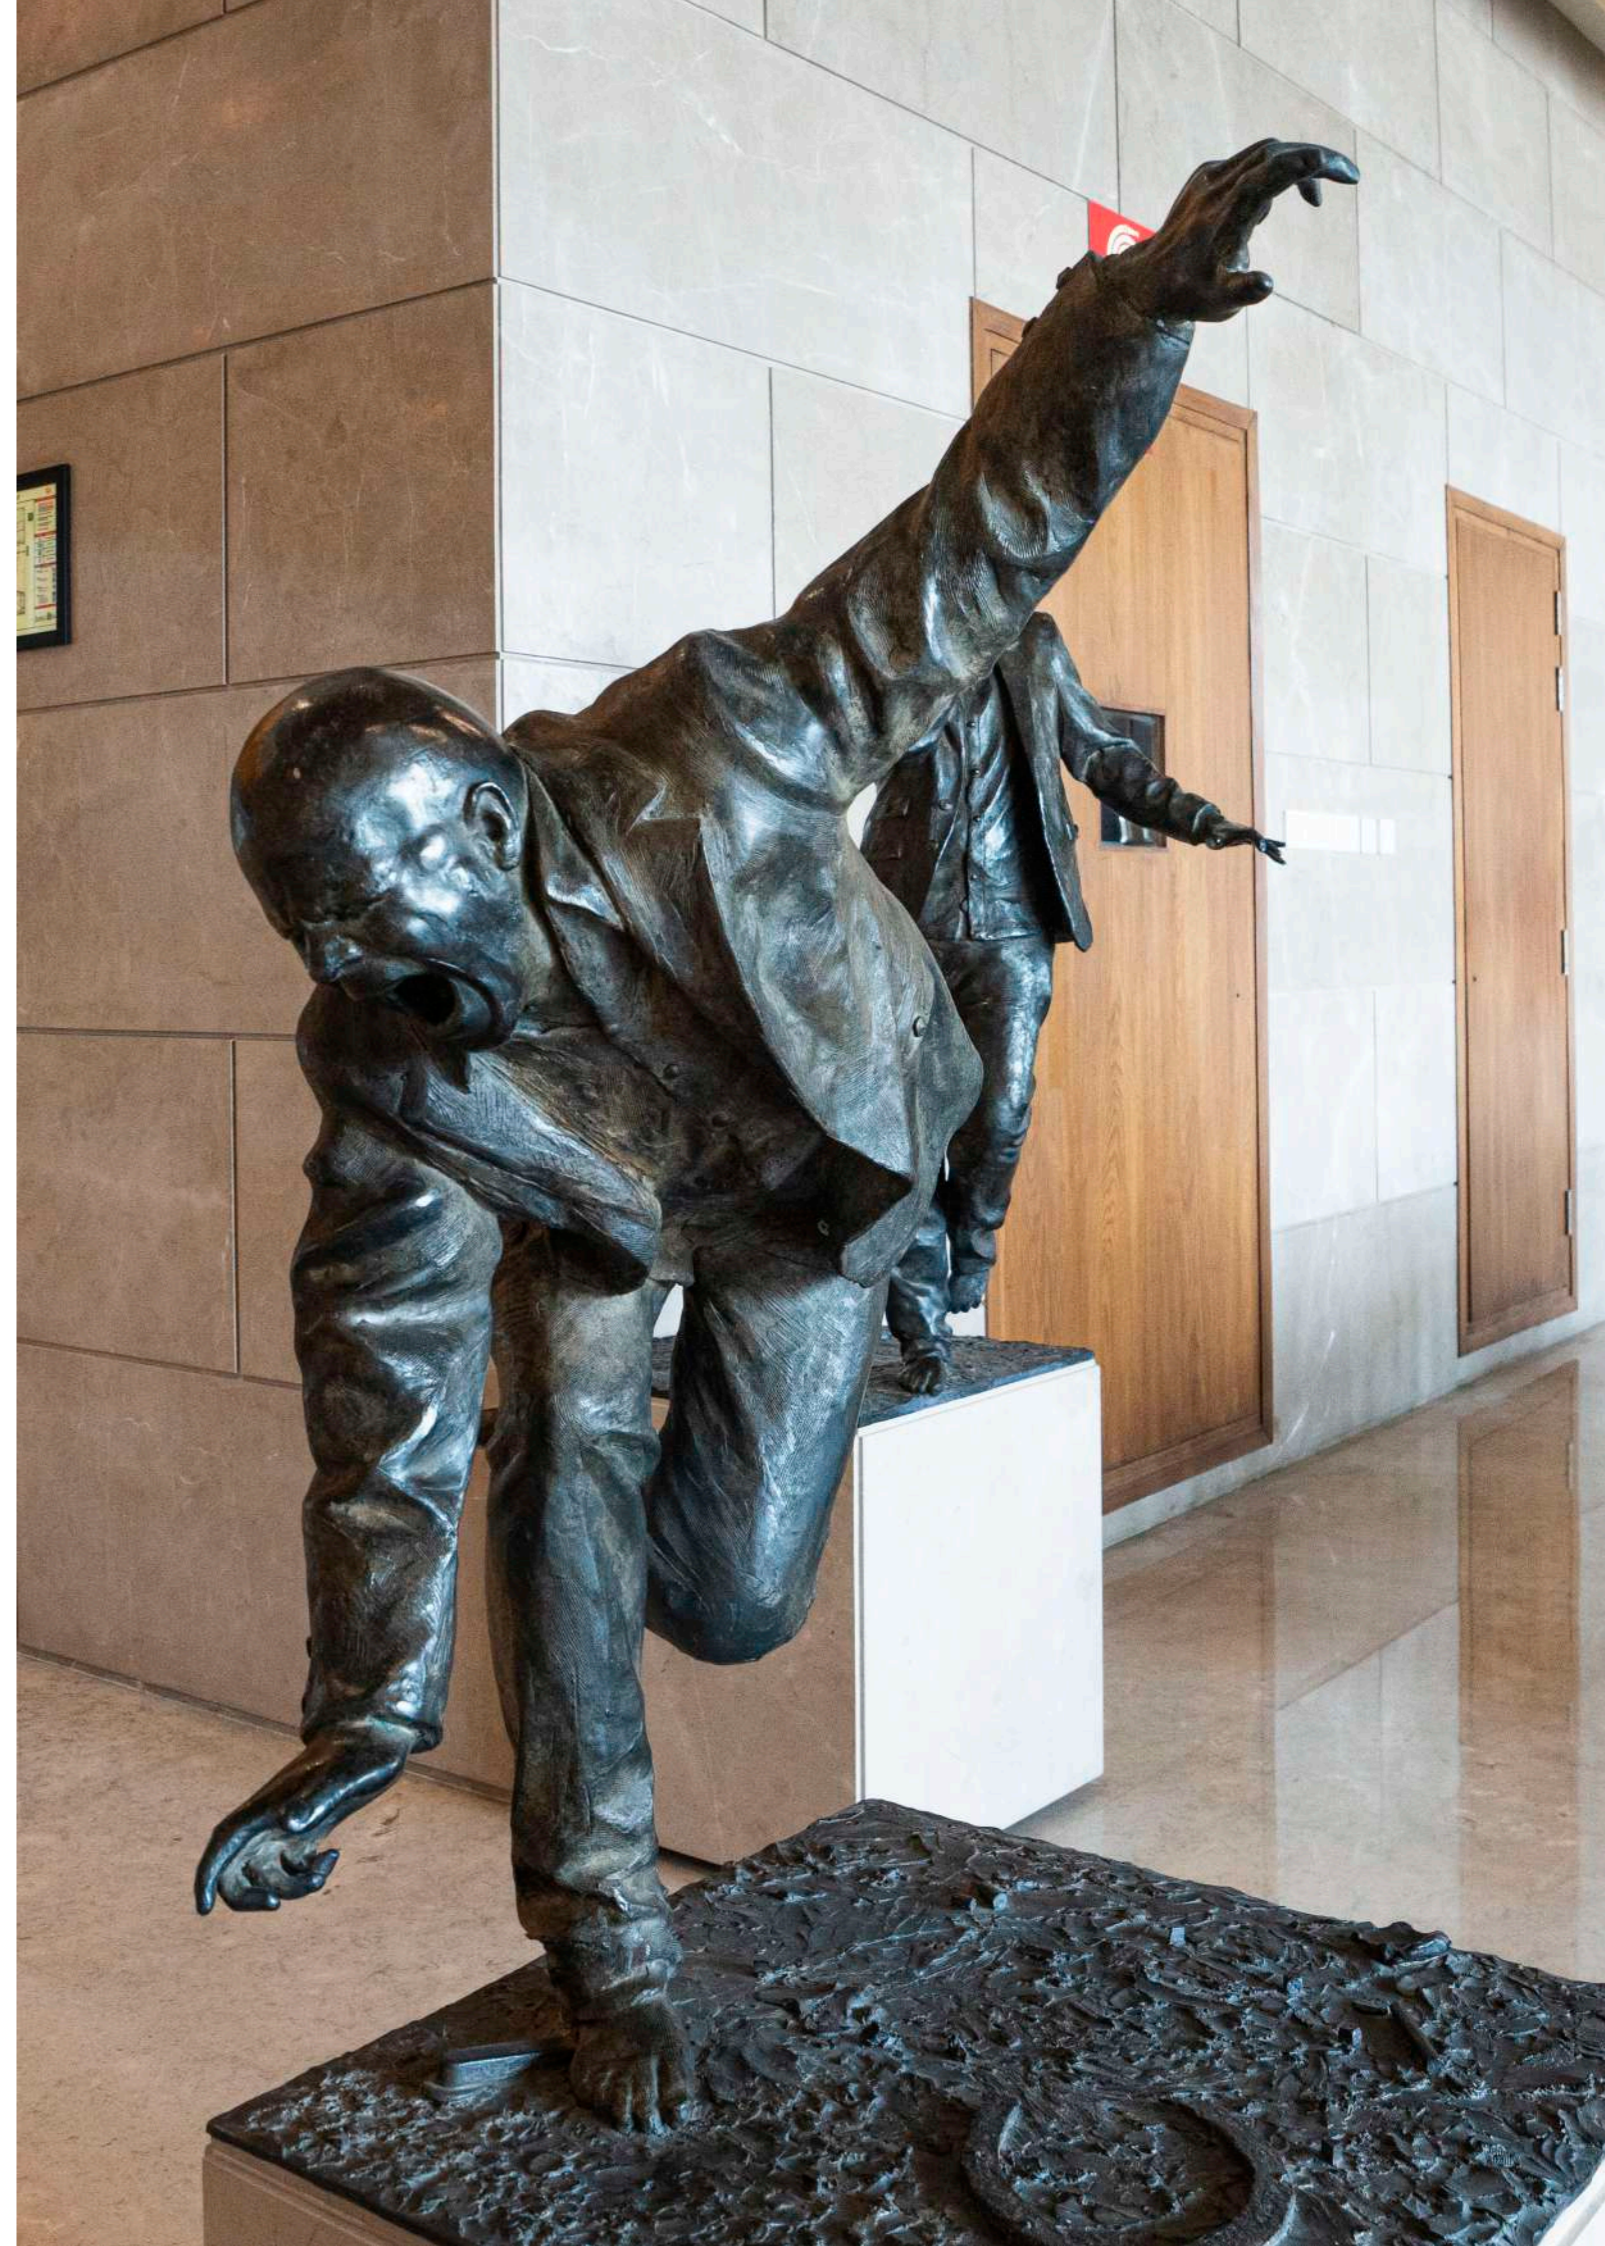

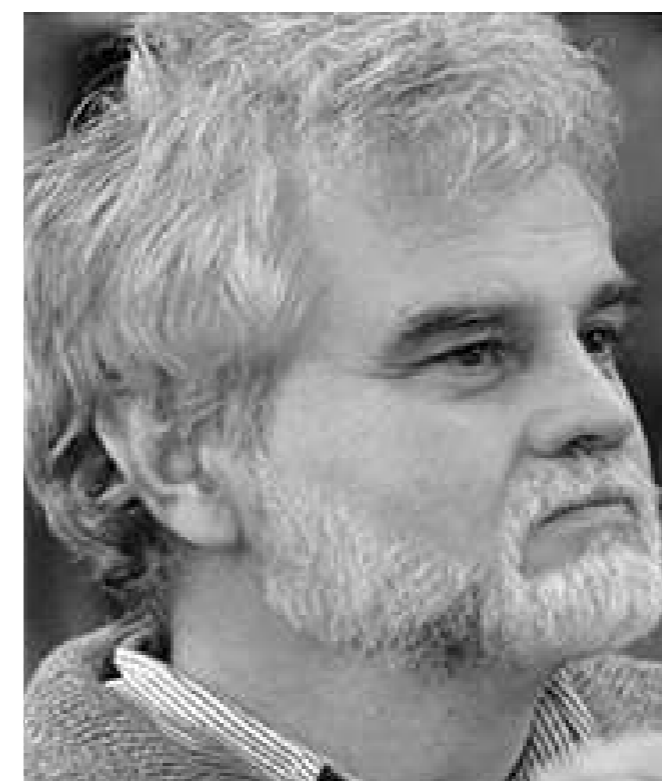

The Seven Sculptures

Artist : Ruhan Janse Van Vauren

On display at : The Touchbase Lounge

The seven Ruhan Janse Van Vauren bronze sculptors on bases displayed at The Touchbase Lounge bring eclectic fun and playfulness to the arena.

Continuing with the theme of lines and patterns, crafted by award winning artist Jaco Sieberhagen these playful climbers around Lift Elevator Lobby are sure to put anyone in a joyful mood.

Artist : Jacobus Johannes Sieberhagen

On Display at : The Elevator Lobby

The most beautiful thing we can experience is the mysterious. It is the source of all true art and science.

...

Aristotle

We would love to show you around.

For leasing options and to visit any of our properties, contact us at

+91-95553-95222 | info@maxestates.in
<http://maxestates.in>

Work Well